

AN DIE KULTURWELT!

Culture, Theology and World War I:

A Conference Engaging the Manifesto of the Ninety-Three

Friday, 19 September 2014

This interdisciplinary conference marks the centenary of the Manifesto, bringing together British, German, and American historians, ethicists, and theologians to re-examine the signatories' intentions in view of the document's historical setting, the meaning of its appeal to 'culture', and the role played by theological motivations.

Keynote Speakers

Nigel Biggar (Oxford) – Mark Chapman (Oxford)

Thomas Albert Howard (Gordon College) – Wolfram Kinzig (Bonn)

Anthony F. Lang (St Andrews) – Julia Winnebeck (Bonn)

Call for Papers

We invite proposals for 30-minute short paper sessions. The full call for papers is available via the conference website. The review of proposals will begin immediately, and will conclude not later than Monday, 1 September 2014.

manifesto1914conference.wordpress.com

The Oxford Research Centre for the Humanities

Radcliffe Humanities Building, Radcliffe Observatory Quarter, OX2 6AD, Oxford

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

RESEARCH CENTRE
IN THE HUMANITIES